CONVERSATION STARTER 9

Introduction: The Mishpachah: Modern Jewish Family Project focuses our attention on the diversity of the families that make up our communities. Who are they? What do they look like? How welcoming and inclusive are we no matter the family structure?

The first step in promoting pluralism is to understand the importance of our communication, whether in direct conversation, when speaking about each other, or when we write or email, etc.

Many of these Conversation Starters are from the personal experiences of diverse families in our communities and are found in the August material, "Beginning the Conversation." Others were taken from everyday sources such as synagogue bulletins and conversations.

Over the next year, as we become more attuned to the effects of language, we will reinforce the wisdom of Proverbs: mavet ve-chayyim beyad lashon (death and life are in the power of the tongue). In other words, language counts!

Thanks to the members of the PAC for creating these discussion questions.

Read the Conversation Starter before a meeting or event and then open it up for discussion. You will be amazed at the response.

Discussion questions

- What could be troubling about this formulation?
- How would a child who attends a Mommy and Me feel if not there with his/her mommy?
- What could be more inclusive titles for these kinds of programs?
