

Closing Remarks
From the Sisterhood President(s)
(adapt to fit the needs of your sisterhood)

In thinking of what to say in my/our closing remarks on Shabbat morning, should we reflect on all of our sisterhood accomplishments of the past year and a half, and then mention everything that is forthcoming in the next few months? Yes, we have accomplished a lot and yes, we are planning some more extraordinary functions . . . But, I/we feel that everyone around (name of synagogue) probably realizes that our sisterhood is a vital and dynamic organization.

So then, I/we thought about doing something creative . . . like taking the words (name of sisterhood) and using a descriptive word or phrase for each letter. But I/we also feel that everyone around (name of synagogue) probably already knows that our sisterhood is a wonderful organization.

So, I/we finally figured out what my/our closing remarks should be. I/we want all of our sisterhood members to know how proud I/we am/are of each and every one of you, how devoted you all are not only to sisterhood and Women's League, but also to (name of synagogue) and to our movement.

And so, my/our closing remarks for this Anniversary Shabbat is a heartfelt todah rabah, personally and publicly, to all the members of (name of sisterhood) for giving me/us the privilege to serve you as your president/s, to be your friend and to be part of this fabulous organization. You are truly our heart and soul!

Shabbat shalom!
